

High School Chorus

Course Description

Students may elect to take this class for either a semester or for a full year. Students develop the vocal skills needed for group choral singing and performance.

Students use many language texts. Chorus will sing with accompaniment and a cappella style. Students study proper vocal tone production, rhythmic accuracy and melodic and rhythmic precision. A variety of choral literature is studied and performed, along with studies of music theory and history. Public performance is a course requirement and students are expected to participate in concerts.

High School Chorus is aligned to both state and national standards.
